Vic Collins, a rancher, hated hoss thieves. However, he fell in love with Miss Hamilton of Kansas City, and as a newcomer introduced her to the Western community, and stayed in love with her in spite of pretty strong convictions that she was the head of a "rustlin' gang" stealing hundreds of his cattle. He just naturally couldn't believe the evidence of his eyes, even when she hit him over the head with a gun butt when he was battling with a man he knew to be a cattle stealer. He depended a lot on Lafe Brownell, horse thief catcher from Texas, to round up the gang, and Brownell told him Miss Hamilton was implicated. Catching a thief making love to the girl, seeing her riding with the gang several times, and then facing her and seeing her smile as he was marked "next to be shot" by the gang, were some of the ways in which his faith was tested. But a faithful man has his day and every woman has her weak spot.
